

Partner Lucy Morris comments for Bloomberg on CFPB consumer complaint report

April 12th, 2021

On March 24, the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) released its Consumer Response Annual Report for 2020. The CFPB reported that there was nearly a 54% increase in complaints in 2020 as compared to 2019. According to Bloomberg, the report is expected to lead to an increase in enforcement activity under the Biden administration.

“You have a change in administration and everything’s different. Even if you thought you were going to have a more forgiving agency, now you don’t,” said Lucy Morris, a partner at Hudson Cook and former CFPB deputy enforcement director. “Complaints are always one of the biggest factors in targeting for enforcement investigations.”

Lucy chairs Hudson Cook’s Government Investigations, Examinations, and Enforcement practice group. She counsels financial institutions and others in complying with federal consumer financial laws and prohibitions against unfair, deceptive, or abusive trade practices. Lucy is an experienced advocate and litigator, representing clients in government investigations, examinations, and enforcement actions before federal and state agencies, including the CFPB, FTC, U.S. Department of Justice and state AG offices.

Click here to read the Bloomberg article.

Hudson Cook, LLP provides articles, webinars and other content on its website from time to time provided both by attorneys with Hudson Cook, LLP, and by other outside authors, for information purposes only. Hudson Cook, LLP does not warrant the accuracy or completeness of the content, and has no duty to correct or update information contained on its website. The views and opinions contained in the content provided on the Hudson Cook, LLP website do not constitute the views and opinion of the firm. Such content does not constitute legal advice from such authors or from Hudson Cook, LLP. For legal advice on a matter, one should seek the advice of counsel.